Women breaking dishes, excited. Women trying to generate the greatest noise possible. An exquisite polyphony. To make noise, to say "enough". Fatigue, submission and liberation. The act of breaking dishes proposes the destruction of preconceived notions between 'woman' and the domestic.

A FOLDED BRIDGE

Vida Simon

Experimental, Canada, 2007, 20 min, colour, texts in French and English

This piece centres around a projected drawing that unfolds in time, as my hand draws on an overhead projector. Images emerge, then transform or dissolve: places become inhabited, figures disappear into the darkness, and at times my shadow becomes another figure in the layers of stories. I tried to capture the palpable yet elusiveness of the drawingimprovisation, and how this gesture acts as an analogy for the imagining of history, for the lapses in memory or understanding. The sound is a collage of my voice, explorations with rusty cans, and found material (recordings made in Estonia, including a group of traditional Setu singers).

L'INACOSTABLE

Aurélie Pedron

Experimental, Quebec, 2007, 11 min 47 s, colour, no dialogue

L'Inacostable is an experimental work constructed from 8 mm films. The images were created by pixilation and reworked in the editing process. This film looks at the destruction of our environment by presenting images of decomposing animals, houses in ruins, boats and forests. A dramatic tension is created by the rhythm of images and music. L'Inacostable is meant to be read intuitively.

LOVE EFFECT

Juana Awad

Experimental, Canada, 2007, 7 min 10 s, colour, no dialogue

Love effect is a poem born out of the need to shorten the distance between you and I. The form and the action mirror one another: two layers are superimposed while two bodies make love. The relationship of the two bodies/layers creates new shapes, and turns the space between them into moving light.

Miriam Altounji

Experimental, Canada, 2006, 2 min 36 s, colour, English

Over is an experimental self-portrait. It explores becoming a young adult. It paints a visual picture of beauty, love and death. The video artist incorporated life-altering events like moving out, breaking-up, and the death of her mother, to make this a very personal piece. MADE IN THE SAME BLOOD / Hechos de la misma sangre

Claudia Bernal

Documentary, Canada, 2007, 23 min 42 s, colour, Spanish/English subtitles

Considered to be the most violent country on the globe, Colombia has been ripped apart by an undeclared civil war since the 1950's. The war is fought by drug traffickers, guerrilleros, paramilitary groups and the army. Civil society is the chief victim. Residents of 'red zones' are expropriated from their land and their possessions impounded. Thousands of people make the journey each day to more secure regions, especially large cities. This has brought about serious social problems. In this collective drama, women are most affected. In MADE IN THE SAME BLOOD, interdisciplinary artist Claudia Bernal presents three survivors.

These three women transform violence into poetry.

An intimate journey in seven chapters, WITHIN REACH explores, through recollections, conversations and experiences, the questions of intimacy in art and the documentary filmmaker's standpoint.
